STEPHEN K AMOS

Instantly likeable with wit and charm, Stephen K Amos has built a reputation as a peerless compere, a popular stand-up and an acclaimed comic writer. He has also been the star of his own BBC2 sketch and stand-up show.

Stephen talks to audiences as if they have known each other for years. His ability to hold their attention and take them on a journey through his life, his passions and his views of the world has led to sell-out tours and a raft of TV and radio appearances.

Stephen has starred in the Radio 4 sketch show 'The Odd Half Hour', the panel show 'The Tyranny of Choices' as well as two series of his own show 'Life: An Idiot's Guide' and the autobiographical stand-up sitcom show 'What Does the K Stand For?' TV credits include Have I Got News for You, Time Gentleman Please, Live at the Apollo and the Royal Variety Performance. He is also a regular panellist on The Wright Stuff.

Appearances on various TV 'list' programmes inspired his Edinburgh show, The 100 Best Things Ever, and he currently tours the UK extensively every year. He has won the Time Out award for Best Stand-Up, presented a documentary on Jamaican music and appeared in a stage production of One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest.
